School Health Roundup May 21

Parents should not forget the annual parent-teacher summer roundup of children at Sunset school Friday afternoon, May 21, from 1 to 2.

The summer roundup is intended to teach parents the value of periodic health examinations for their children. Parents who will place their children in Sunset school next year should bring the children to the roundup for a free health examination next Friday so that any health defects may be remedied before the time the child enters school. Each year, some local doctor gives his services, assisted by the school nurse, Mrs. Atter. Dr. J. B. McCarthy will be in charge this year. Each child examined will be given a slip listing health defects, and it is hoped that parents will attend to these as soon as possible.

If you know any person who may not have read this notice but who intends to send their child to the school next fall, tell them about the roundup, both for their benefit and that of the other children in the school.

Local Youths to Leave for Orient

Leaving Carmel next Saturday for an indefinite stay in Japan, China and other parts of the world, are John Nye and Ronald Johnson, who don't know just when they will return but are postively certain they will starve while gone.

Johnny Nye is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Nye, and has been a resident of Carmel for the last eight years. He is well known to everyone, and at present is the smiling young man who dishes out gas and oil at the San Carlos Motor Sales.

Ronald Johnson is the son of Mrs. M. Osborn Johnson, who left Carmel some months ago to make her home in Los Angeles. For over a year he has been a Pine Cone reporter and writer of the Pine Cone column "Up Town and All Around".

So far, the only thng definite about the trip is the starting date, May 22, and the name of the ship upon which they will sail, the "Golden Hind", which will take them to Kobe, Japan. From then on, their fate will rest in the laps of the gods, the Japanese, the Chinese, and whatever other races they happen to run across during their search for fame, fortune and discomfort.

Joseph Schoeninger to Speak Over KROW

Carmel friends of Joe Schoeninger, student at University of California and son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Schoeninger of the Point, will be glad to hear that Joe has been asked to be a radio speaker. Sunday afternoon, May 16, at 1 o'clock, Joe will speak over station KROW in Oakland to tell the radio world about the student movement. It should be an interesting talk, and more so to Carmelites, who have known Joe for many years.

Many model homes, dramatising the latest in building construction, will be shown at the 1939 Golden Gate International Exposition.

P-T.A.-Sunset Carnival Plans Complete

Parade, Vaudeville, Dancing, Musical Numbers Among Features Friday Afternoon

What is it that starts with a big parade, picks up everyone in town along the way, and ends up by sending them all home happy and contented?

The answer is the Parent-Teachers' Association-Sunset School Carnival, to be given this afternoon at Sunset school by the children, adult Carmel residents and outside talent which has been secured for the show. The show is being given for a great cause the school welfare fund, which supplies milk and hot lunches for many of the children, plus medical aid when needed. The P-T. A. knows what it will need for the coming year in the welfare fund and whatever is left over, if any is left over, will be applied to the library fund.

Enthusiastic support has come from all sides, and both amateur and professional talent will be on hand to help the children.

The parade will start at 1:15, after having formed on Ninth street. It will proceed down Dolores street to Ocean avenue, up Ocean to San Carlos, and back San Carlos to the school, where the afternoon's entertainment will begin. At the head of the parade will be Police Chief Robert Norton, probably Mayor Everett Smith, and other city officials. Just behind the cars carrying the officials will march the Monterey high school band, all dressed up in brilliant uniforms. Then will come the doll buggy parade, little girls pushing their buggies, which will be gaily decorated with colored ribbons. The costume parade will be next in line with a number of children dressed in native costumes and as famous characters of the many countries. Then a bicycle and wagon group will follow, also decorated brilliantly. Boy Scouts in uniform will come next, and the last thing in the big parade will be Fire Chief Robert Leidig and a big, shiny fire truck.

The program at the school will commence at 2, with the Monterey high school band playing several selections on the terrace. Then will be the circus given by the primary grades and acts given in the auditorium. Features of the auditorium show will be dancing numbers and musical skits, directed by Miss Madeline Currey, who showed such skill with her directing of the children in the recent show during Public Schools Week. Also, a freak performance is promised.

Outside, the school yard will be the scene of most of the activity. Features listed for the afternoon include Sketches, Trained Seals, Ponies, Clowns, Hot Dogs, Soda Pop, Coffee, Ice Cream, Food Sale, Flowers, Books, Fish Pond, Light Ray Gun. A group of local men who have proved their ability at previous shows will be on hand to act as barkers for the many booths listed above.

The trained seals are to be furnished by H. W. Winston, who owns the seal farm near Del Monte. The outfit for the seals' act consists of a large ring, a number of huge balls, which they balance on their noses, ladders and other paraphernalia, and a pony, upon whose back the seals ride. This act is well known and the seals have taken part in many motion pictures.

One of the most popular concessions at this type of carnival is the Business Assn. Meets Tonight

Tonight at 8 o'clock, at Pine Inn, the regular monthly meeting of the very busy Carmel Business Association will be held. The association has been showing new life during the last few months and these meetings are rapidly becoming more popular with Carmel business men, who are developing greater interest than ever in the welfare of the town.

As everyone knows, the association has been sponsoring a petition for a new post office during the last few weeks. The petition was first put in the present post office, where a large number of residents signed it. Then it was put in the banks and at the American Legion clubhouse, and even more signers appeared. The number of names rose rapidly from several hundred to over 500, and during the last week, it has been brought up to over 700. A report will be submitted at the meeting, telling the exact number of signers and the attitude shown toward the petition. Communications from Senator McGrath and the assistant postmaster general will be read at the time.

Another question to be brought up will be that of peddlers licenses, with the possibility that some change in the present setup might be sanctioned by the association. Two weeks ago, Frederick Bechdolt, then guest editor of The Pine Cone, wrote an editorial on the subject which aroused much interest on the part of association members, and it is hoped that Mr. Bechdolt will appear before the meeting to advance more of his ideas on this problem and that further study of the question will be made.

With the coming of summer, the association has looked the beach over, and there will be talk of some way of getting it cleaned up. Summer visitors flock to the beach n great numbers, and it is hoped that when they arrive they will be met by the sight of a wide, clean expanse of white sand—not the usual collection of papers and old tin cans left by picnickers.

Kuster May Stage Two Plays Here

When Edward Kuster leased the Filmarte theater to Richard Bare some months ago and then moved to San Francsco, it looked like the end of Kuster-produced plays in Carmel. When Kuster went to San Francisco, he started the Golden Bough playhouse, which has proved quite succesaful. Now he and his actors are working on two new plays, "There Go I" and "By Candle Light", to be presented in San Francisco this summer. However, Kuster has written letters to the city council announcing that he would like to stage two plays here this summer in the Forest Theater, making many believe that he will bring his two shows here for tryouts before presenting them to San Francisco audiences.

Movie Celebrities to Attend Race Meet of Monterey County Racing Assn.

Thousands of turf fans will converge upon the Monterey peninsula at the end of this month for the inaugural meet of the Monterey County Racing Association, which gets underway on May 31.

Widespread support is being given the meet in the belief that it will prove highly beneficial to racing as a whole and owners of almost all of the horses now racing at Bay Meadows have already reserved stalls.

Among the prominent stables to be represented here are those of Mrs. C. H. Howard, owner of "Sea Biscuit"; Mrs. William P. Roth, owner of "Don Roberto"; Mrs. Muriel Vanderbilt Phelps, Harry Hunt, Henry P. Russell and many others.

On the opening day of the meet a special train of film stars, headed by Bing Crosby and other celebrities interested in racing, is scheduled to arrive at Del Monte.

Actively supporting the meet is William P. Kyne, general manager of Bay Meadows. Discussing the meeting yesterday Kyne declared:

"I think the Del Monte meet will unquestionably be successful and facilities will be taxed to the utmost to accommodate the patrons on the opening day. The meeting will prove a great benefit to racing as new interest will be created in Carmel, Monterey, Salinas and other towns in the area."

Should the meet prove as successful as Kyne predicts, future plans call for annual spring and fall meetings with Del Monte forming the nucleus of a strong circuit of secondary tracks.

DePackh Brings New Art to This Community

A recent arrival in Carmel is G. DePackh, who has come here from Hollywood to show Carmelites just what can be done with small pieces of wood and a few instruments. Mr. DePackh is more a wood modeler than a wood carver, and he is definitely an addition to Carmel's group of artists. He is doing his work now in Mrs. Carol Edward's Carmel Art and Gift Shop, and already many Carmelites have dropped in to watch him work on the beautiful things he makes from all sorts of wood. He has had much experience in this line, having studied in Europe and practised his art in Hollywood for the last 11 years, where he has made novelty wooden jewelry, buttons, pins, nameplates and many other things. Mr. DePackh is doing his modeling in the window of the shop, where he may be seen any time. An interesting about his wood modeling is that you may order whatever you wish and then wait and watch while he skillfully works the wood into all sorts of delicate deisgns.

BEAR CREEK ROAD CLOSED

The Bear Creek road, which branches from the Los Gatos-Santa Cruz highway a short distance south of Los Gatos and leads to Boulder Creek is still closed, according to the San Jose office of the National Automobile Club. Partial construction weakened by spring rains has left the road in very poor shape. Spring work will remedy this condition.

McGaw-Knox to Give Final Play

Baldwin McGaw and Emma Knox bring their fine series of play presentations to a close tomorrow night with their offering of "Jane Eyre', at the Golden Bough Greenroom on Casanova street. The Charlotte Bronte classic has been brought to life under the sure and witty touch of Helen Jerome, who also made the brilliant dramatization of "Pride and Prejudice" which was another of New York's best successes last season. The limited capacity of the Greenroom has been almost fully subscribed by season ticket holders, but a few seats will be available at the door. Advance reservations may be made through Miss Laura Diersen at her home in Carmel.

Ambulance Committee of Carmel Chapter of Red Cross Holds Meeting

At a meeting of the ambulance committee of Carmel chapter, American Red Cross this week, J. L. Cockburn, chairman sought the advice of several people qualified to pass upon the type of ambulance that would best meet the needs of the Carmel district for several years to come.

"American Red Cross has recently launched a definite Highway First Aid Service, through the establishment of first aid stations on the great highway arteries of the country," said Mr. Cockburn. "Already over 3600 stations have been installed at strategic points with first aid kits and manned by men who have received Red Cross first aid certificates. Naturally Carmel is the logical center for accident relief on the new Coast highway about to be opened to the public. Our territory extends to the Big Sur and 15 miles down the Carmel Valley highway. This we want to be prepared to protect," continued Mr. Cockburn.

"Several prominent Carmel citizens have urged Red Cross to sponsor an ambulance fund and our fire department has prepared a space for the vehicle in the new fire house. The ambulance would be supplied with pulmotor to be used in case of suffocation from drowning or fire, with first aid supplies, and also contain a special stretcher to be utilized for invalid cases to and from Peninsula Community Hospital.

"We have been promised full cooperation from the medical staff of the hospital," said Mr. Cockburn, and Red Cross feels that such a conveyance will be the means of saving human life. That is what Red Cross stands for.

"It is estimated, that with the proper equipment, the ambulance can be installed for the sum of $1800. Already, one generous woman has laid the foundation for the fund through the donation of $500 and another has given $100. I fully believe that our citizens will respond nobly in the support of such a much-needed community service."

"The Bank of Carmel and Monterey Trust & Savings Bank will accept contributions to the fund or checks can be mailed to Carmel Red Cross. Give what you can. Any amount is most acecptable."

University Women Hold Election

Mrs. Webster Street of Carmel was re-elected president of the Monterey peninsula branch of the American Association of University Women at a dinner meeting held last night at the Forest Hills hotel in Pacific Grove.

Other officers elected to serve during the coming year were Mrs. Harold Youngman of the Country Club, vice-president; Miss Elizabeth W. Hill of Carmel, secretary; and Mrs. Peter Ferrante of Carmel, treasurer. The meeting was the last to be held until the end of the summer.

After the meeting, a business session was held with members discussing plans for the next year. One of the more important subjects discussed was the possibility of the state association holding its convention on the peninsula next year. A study group was planned to study the present trends in art. Mrs. Oswald Pedley and Miss Anne Norwood presented a short reading of part of "Victoria Regina", and the meeting was brought to a close. While no definite date has been set, the association will hold its first meeting of the fall and winter sometime in September.

Barbara Winslow Loses In Doubles Competition

Barbara Winslow, sister of Mrs. Ranald Cockburn, and daughter of W. S. Winslow of Carmel, who is the tennis hope of Southern California, and her partner, Gracyn Wheeler, were defeated Monday in the finals of the Southern California championship tournament by Dorothy Bundy and Dorothy Workman. However, Miss Winslow was playing in the senior division, while she is only a junior, and she still will go east this year to play in the national championship matches.

GIRL SCOUT COOKIE SALE

Pacific Grove Girl Scouts will conduct a cookie sale tomorrow at 206 Forest avenue in Pacific Grove. It is hoped that the sale will bring in enough funds to enable some of the girls to attend summer camp.

Reader's Reactions

CLOSED SHOP—AND WHAT?

The Monterey County Building Trades Council, through its Press Committee and Recording Secretary, declares for a closed shop on the Monterey peninsula beginning June 1, 1937. The meaning of this is that only union men be employed "and that wages, hours and working conditions shall be stipulated by the Council."

After all these "stipulations" (which would appear less venal if reversed in order), where does the Bill-settler, John W. Citizen, come in? Will he have any protection? Will he have redress in case of poor, bad, rotten work is done by members of the Council? Will the Council stand back of its pronunciamento and see that the billpayer gets value as surely as the workman gets union wages? Is the Council ready to wield a two-edged sword as readily as it proposes to swing a sabre? One strange paragraph in the press release doesn't hold out much hope for it states, "The Council is not interested in the manner in which any operator conducts his business, excepting the manner in which he treats his employees".

Whew!

With that slap in the puss, this Peninsula might well advise the Council to snap into a huddle and dope out another press release which would not throw large pails of ice water against the now warm sacro-iliac of the biggest building boom the community has known. Think, Messrs. Overhulse, Winslow and Long, think some long, long thoughts. If artisanship is made the basis of the closed shop then the writer is for the move because good work is badly needed. But if union membership is to be extended to all and sundry, then we must howl against it for there are now too many punks in all trades hereabouts who "jis wanna git a few bucks t' take th' hot cha baby out t' some alcohol whoopee." It seems that the best office of the Council might be to reverse its declaration and keep very much interested in "the manner in which any operator conducts his business." A grateful public would applaud that stand. —A Carmelite.

Henri Deering and Isaac Stern Play Fine Concert at Lyal's Studio, May 7

By DORA HAGEMEYER

One of the most memorable events in the music world for us this spring was the concert of Henri Deering and Isaac Stern at Margaret Lial's studio on Friday evening. It was an occasion to remain in the mind, both for the distinguished quality of the music and the charm of the surroundings. The simple room, with its white walls and the four murals by Henrietta Shore, lent, without effort, an atmosphere of charm in which it was possible for the artists to give their best.

Remembering Isaac Stern several years ago (at a concert by Yehudi Menuhin in San Francisco) as a young lad in a boyish shirt, it was quite a surprise to see him appear and stand before us with his violin, almost mature and of sturdy proportions. Here was no "child phenomenon" but a young man playing in his own right, drawing his inspiration from his own center, and already established as a violinist of power and poise.

Henri Deering, well known as one of the foremost among pianists, delighted his audience by his profound understanding of the sonata form. The long flowing line of his beautiful playing moved in and out of the violin tones with that equality and balance so important in such music. It may be said that he played as a lovable human being as well as a fine musician,—gracious always to the gifted young violinist who has yet to make his name.

In the Beethoven C minor Sonata it was in the Scherzo and Allegro movements that the audience first realized the power and splendid vitality of Isaac Stern. It was a joy to listen to such playing—vibrant, swift and clean. The Brahms Sonata in D minor was, to many, the most beautiful number on the program, but the three sonatas might indeed be very difficult to choose from, so fine was the interpretation given.

Many of us went home from that concert feeling inwardly sustained and grateful that two such artists had been pleased to join forces to give us such a rare musical experience.

Giants-Pilots Win Abalone League Tilts

By RONALD JOHNSON

Abalone Leaguers last Sunday enjoyed a taste of big league baseball, when the second game of the afternoon went to nine innings instead of the usual seven. Many who saw the game and a number of players thought the game should have ended in the eighth with the Shamrocks winning, but it went on for another session and the Giants came out on top. It was a good thing that soda pop was not being sold in the bleachers, what with the empty bottles that would have been thrown at the umpires—another big league touch. However, all ended happily, as Abalone league games always do.

In the first game on Carmel Woods diamond, the Pilots, who have occupied the darkest corner of the basement all season, suddenly saw the light, and what they did to the Tigers, who have consistently played near the top, was a surprise to everyone, including the victors. The final score was 10 for the Pilots, 5 for the Tigers, the Pilots making four of their runs in the first inning and six in the second. They failed to score again, but their early lead was too much for the Tigers, who came through with one in the second, one in the fourth, rallied in the sixth and brought home three men, and then failed to do anything in the last inning. The Tigers appeared startled by the sudden strength of the Pilots and the game proved rather unexciting. Scorers for the winning side were O. W. Bardarson, Ricketts, Hull, Townsend, Turner and B. Bardarson. Tiger hitters were Ivan Kelsey, Rudy Holtzhauer and Galen Alderson. Perhaps one reason the game fell below expectations was that Pilot catcher Frank Townsend failed to use his famous bean ball throw from the plate to second base, with which he hit two men in a row last week. The idea of the throw is to catch the runner on the back of the neck as he tries to steal second, and its premier showing last week added much to the game.

The second game brought together Shamrocks and Giants, the Giants winning 8 to 7 at the end of nine hard-fought innings. Much of the hard fighting was due to the fact that the weather took a sudden turn to the cold side and players jumped about faster to keep warm. Both teams played evenly throughout the first seven innings, and at the end of the seventh, the score stood 7 to 7. The eighth was the inning that caused all the trouble. If the majority vote counted in baseball games, the Shamrocks would have had the game, or a good chance of winning it. Rudy Holtzhauer came home to score for the Shamrocks, but at the same time, a double out was made and Holtzhauer was declared out also. The game went on, but not until the entire crowd had worked itself into a lather trying to find out what the score was. Explanations were given, but practically everyone present went home wondering. The Shamrocks came up first in the ninth, Allen Knight got to third base, and the three Shamrocks following him were put out in rapid order. Then, the Giants were up. After two outs had been made, Taylor got on base and was brought home by Masten, thus making the Giants the winners in the eyes of the law. Giants who made the circuit were Hilbert, Jenkins, De Amaral, Townsend, Dekker and Taylor. Successful Shamrocks were the Holtzhauer brothers, Louie and Rudy, Hasty, Tremayne and Tarango.

Next Sunday, May 16, Giants will meet Tigers at 1:30 and Pilots will fight it out with Shamrocks at 2:45.

Now in the one half of the remodeled buildng on Ocean avenue formerly occupied by Macbeths and owned by E. H. Ewig, Clarabel Haydock Zuck, who has been a Carmel realtor for a number of years, has opened up her own real estate business, complete with a staff of salesmen. One of the things that makes her real estate office different is a book in which all Carmeltes and visitors are urged to put their names and addresses, so that when their friends come to town, they may be easily located.

In the other half of the building, Ynez M. Whitaker will open the doors of her new dress shop to visitors, tomorrow from 12 to 8. An interesting feature, and unusual for Carmel, will be the mannequins who will wear and display all the latest fashions. Those who wish to see the mannequins in action may do so between 2 and 6 tomorrow afternoon.

Fifteen hundred organizations will hold their annual conventions in the San Francisco bay area in 1939, the year of the Golden Gate International Exposition.

Here's the DRUM-MAJOR of the motor car parade

IF you know a leader when you meet one, you'll see the moment you try this sparkling Buick why it's called the out-in-front car of the year.

You'll go for the way it goes for you—serene, steady, gallant as the figurehead on a buoyant ship—you're in for a thrill every time you put it into action.

You handle a wheel that turns as easy as the pages of a book. You press the treadle—and sink inches deep back in the soft cushions with the swoop of its take-off.

You click off miles by the score, the hundred—and no matter how far you range or what gait you travel, you can't get a whine out of that softly whispering engine!

The answer is you've got a car that was born to go places the way you want to go—smoother, safer, steadier than any car you've known.

Power in this flashing Buick is the power of eight straight valve-in-head cylinders. Its gait is the level gait of a car built close to earth with enough bulk to hold it there. Its maneuverability is the quick mobility of a charger.

Yet the crowning touch of its creators was none of these but the figures they succeeded in writing on its price tag. The hard-to-realize fact is that this great straight eight can be bought for less than some of today's sixes!

There's just one way to get the true picture of Buick's standout value, and that's to drive it yourself. See us soon and get your order in, and you'll enjoy a summer like you've dreamed of!

TAX IN KIND.....by Richard L. Masten

(Note: This is the third of a series of articles in which Mr. Masten outlines a method of improving the national economy through more complete utilization of existing plant, equipment and labor).

ABILITY TO PAY

It may be argued that the tax in kind is out of line with the most advanced social philosophy, which holds that the burden of taxation should be made to fall most heavily upon those who live well without producing. For it would not touch holders of bonds and mortgages and income bearing real estate, who reap without sowing. Those who contributed to it would be our productive enterprisers, our mine owners and manufacturers, railroads and merchants, who are the backbone of our industrial system.

This is true, but it is only half the story. The other half has to do with the point that while our producers, taken in the broad sense, would be the only contributors to the tax, they would not be bearing the tax burden for the simple reason that in the main it would be burdenless.

We have heard a great deal about "ability to pay" as a tax basis. The tax in kind idea goes beyond that. It would tax only where there is ability to pay without feeling it. For as has been pointed out in a previous article it would turn to the government support facilities which industry has never been able to employ for its own support, subsidizing their operation and supplying a market for their output.

And by making possible the removal of the bulk of present uneconomic Federal taxes, it would do even more than this. It would allow the industrialist to retain all the benefits to be gained from catering to his normal market. His net profit would no longer be reduced by the deduction of such taxes from his return from that market.

Then, when we add to this advantage that which would come to him through the capital goods subsidies designed to balance the market for non-consumer goods, we find that the enterpriser would be one of the greatest of all the plan's beneficiaries.

CAPITAL GOODS

Some well meaning people may object to the idea of capital goods subsidies on the ground that they would turn to the mighty a portion of the tax return which might better go to the support of the needy. But while this objection may seem valid from a sociological standpoint, it is not valid from the standpoint of economics. The tax in kind idea is an attempt to apply to the national economy the very simple axiom that the more you produce the wealthier you should be. And without these subsidies increased output in one large sector of our industrial system would not be realized.

For under the profit system it is only possible for an enterpriser to produce as much as he can sell. All through our national economy production is habitually and necessarily trimmed to meet market demands. And it is this fact — described as "starvation in the midst of plenty" —that has supplied the production-for-use advocates, of whom the Communists are the most vocal group, with their most potent ammunition.

The tax in kind would reverse the process, bringing effective demand up within hailing distance of productive possibility. At its ideal best it would make it possible for the enterpriser to sell as much as he could produce. At worst it would allow him to sell at a profit all that he is selling today while keeping his facilities far busier than they are now turning out products at cost for a market that does not today exist.

But if all the returns from a general tax in kind were distributed to the little fellow, through re-employment and Social Security payments and removal of the present Federal taxes, the effect upon that part of our industrial system which turns out capital goods would be disastrous. For it could not meet the tax by augmented production, since no market would have been provided for the extra goods it produced.

It is true, of course, that a current in the consumer goods circuit of our economy does induce a current in the capital goods circuit, but this is an indirect current and lags behind in point of time. So some other and more immediate means of increasing the market for articles used in the production or handling of other articles must be provided.

And this can be effected by granting to buyers of capital goods a rebate of 20 per cent (assuming that to be the amount of the tax) of their purchase price. For with such an arrangement in force all the money collected through the tax in kind on capital goods would be poured back into the market for them.

Such a move might still not be effective if there were no physical demand for capital goods in excess of present market requirements, since the amount of the rebates would then be diverted to other purposes. But there is unending physical demand, and at no time in years has so much of this accumulated as during the depression, when consumer demand did not justify capital expenditure.

Thus the rebates should, by lowering their price to the buyer by some 20 per cent, at least broaden the capital goods market in the same proportion. And it is quite possible that it would do more than that. It might increase demand so sharply that their non-tax market as well as their total output would increase.

Whether this is so, whether a 20 per cent reduction in the price of capital goods, coupled with a 20 per cent increase in general industrial activity, would increase sales more than 20 per cent, the manufacturers and prospective buyers of those goods are better qualified to judge than any theorist. But if it did it would, by creating a new neucleus of activity, tend to better conditions clear through the industrial system.

But this would not be its greatest advantage. For no matter how much the subsidies did for the manufacturer of capital goods they would do far more for their buyer.

Everyone who wanted to increase his plant or renew his equipment would be granted a government subsidy to help him. No matter how great or how small was his purchase, no matter whether he himself was in the capital goods or the consumer goods division, no matter whether his plant was a farm, a steel mill or a filling station, he would need only present his account and he would get his refund.

Naturally the government would be left with no balance whatever from its tax in kind on the capital goods industries. But neither would it net any loss, since the subsidized reemployment in the capital goods sector would pay dividends in social security.

Furthermore the boon given to American industry in an ability to expand or renew equipment at less capital expense would, by cutting down overhead, help it in its future struggles for foreign markets. And the nation as an economic unit should be interested in this.

Then, too, the subsidies would accelerate an increase in productive capacity and therefore the net return from a tax on that capacity. No longer would we let tomorrow take care of itself, and sometimes of today as well. Instead while the consumer goods part of our program was tackling present problems and enriching the life of today the capital goods part would be speeding us along the road to eventual abundance.

OPERATING SUPPLIES

One major adjustment would have to be made in the field of operating supplies. For in providing an increase in demand to take up extra production we would have to bear in mind that operating supplies do not fit into the general process of production and distribution as do other goods.

The actual materials which go into the manufacture of comodities would flow in the same ratio after institution of the new tax system as before, though in increased volume. But this is not true of those other materials and services which support production.

With a 20 per cent tax in kind in force the manufacturer of shoes, for instance, would require 20 per cent more leather and glue and nails and linings and so on to put out his tax proportion. But he would not require 20 per cent more electric power or coal or lubricants for his machinery. For with an increase in output the efficiency of his operations would in most cases increase.

In relation to our national economy, this would be a good thing. But it would put the furnisher of operating supplies at a great disadvantage For while he would have his tax costs refunded he would, if the tax on him were 20 per cent and demand for his product increased only 10 per cent, have a 10 per cent smaller market over which to spread his capital costs and from which to derive his profit. And it is the final bit of profitable production which yields the greatest net return.

In many cases capital goods subsidies would help create a balance. But where they did not, justice and a desire to avoid dislocations would demand that he be granted a rebate to make up the deficiency until such time as increased activity resulting from the new system brought his profitable market back to normal.

This would create certain complications in accounting and supervision, but if the amount of his capital goods subsidies were deducted from the amount of his deficiency rebate it would not place the system under any great hanicap. And while he would be left with less initial benefit from the arrangement than was received by other industrialists he would be as well off as he is today. He would, in fact, be better off. For along with everyone else, he would profit by relief from many of today's burdensome taxes.

Scouts to Hold Overnight Camp

Announcement has been made that the Boy Scout camporees will be held as scheduled over the week-end, at the 4-H camp near Corralitos.

The camporee will be an overnight camping demonstration on a patrol basis, with Scouts carrying out their program under their own boy leadership. While the camp will be run by the Scouts, adults will be on hand to supervise and judge the work done by the patrols. All supplies for the camp will be packed in by the boys for a distance of a half-mile. The week-end will be complete with games, contests, swimming, campfire church services, and competition between boys and troops.

The Scout council, which will be in direct control of the camporee, has two Carmel members, Everett Smith and W. S. Frolli.

FIRST TRANSPACIFIC FLIGHT.....by James F. Leys

(Note: Mr. Leys has visited Carmel several times, but is now making his home in the Orient. He is a young newspaper man and the author of "After You, Magellan", a book written following a vagabond trip around the world).

It seems strange that, after these years of preparation, the trans-Pacific air-line does not yet reach China. The terminals are at Macao and Hongkong, both European possessions. Though there is no great difference geographically, for both are next to Chinese territory and largely populated by Chinese, it is a grievous political error to imagine either Hongkong or Macao as being in China.

Macao has been in the hands of the Portuguese for nearly 400 years, and Hongkong has been British since 1840. Both are on islands in the mouth of the Canton river, and both were founded to allow protection to European merchants dealing with a people reluctant to afford safety even to those with whom they were willing to trade. In addition, it may be said that the continued prosperity of Hongkong is also due to the fact that modern large ships cannot proceed upriver as far as Canton. As there is no navigational difficulty in the passage of air-liners to Canton it would appear that the element of protection stands alone as the reason why the airships are not flown a few miles farther and landed in China itself. In that is a clear example of the continued unsettled condition out here today. However, it should be added that there is tangible evidence of unity and dignity in a new China; and in that Americans may take pride that they have helped in the development of aviation in China. For in this vast country, not intrawoven with roads and highways, air lines play a greater part in national development than in any other country in the world.

At present, therefore, the trans-Pacific passenger approaching Asia by air finds himself coming not to China but to the British Crown Colony of Hongkong and flying, not over curved temple roofs, or exotic lily ponds, but past and often actually lower than the granite residences of merchant princes built on the towering Peaks. Below him will stretch what is certainly the greatest harbour in the British Empire, possibly its most beautiful, and presumably the most likely to be attacked in the event of war in Asia. Hence there is some point in calling Hongkong the Gibraltar of the East, for there is a powerful garrison here at all times, in addition to units of His Majesty's China Fleet.

The streets are, for streets in Asia, well kept and clean. There are numerous winding motor-roads and plenty of new cars for hire, in which one can go plunging around hair-pin curves with bamboo groves on one side and sheer cliffs to the shining sea on the other; or go scooting through ancient Chinese fishing or farming villages secure in the knowledge that there will be no attempt at banditry.

In the city of Victoria, of half a million people, will be met officers and troops of crack British regiments. At present the famous Seaforth Highlanders are here and it is worth the trans-Pacific air passage to hear their pipe band in the early morning. Oddly, there is also here a smart native battalion from the Hills of India, with their own pipe band, and temporarily the Inniskilling Fusiliers from Ireland with their own peculiar bagpipes—making three independent and racially different forms of skirling going on at the same time. Luckily their barracks are well separated.

Your correspondent had an amusing time with the Inniskilling Fusiliers when they first arrived in the Colony from Singapore. They did not land openly and bravely in the harbour of Hongkong and debark with pipes and drums down a decorated gangway as one might suppose, but landed secretly in the dead of night in an unfrequented bay. It was their duty to land and take possession of the Colony, if possible, for the annual manoeuvres were on and they, accompanied by Royal Marines and the Navy, were the enemy. As a gunner in a volunteer company here I have a machine gun and a little slab of concrete out on a rock in the sea where she sets up coverage of the entrance to a small sandy beach ideal for night landing parties.

Though any one of a hundred spots might have been chosen it was my luck one night to see against the blackness and far at sea the heaving outlines of men-of-war. Then grew patches of even blacker night much nearer as boats came towards the shore under tow, then came the sound of muffled oars and, scarce 30 yards from my rock, the Inniskillings were seen rowing for the beach. Once landed and moving up the steep face of the hills they would be met by the Seaforth Highlanders—but before they got there, my gun from its unique position, opened fire (blanks only, of course). The barrel grew red hot with barking at them, then came the welcome sound of an umpire shouting through a megaphone from the distant cliffs—"Number One boat, 50 per cent killed. Number Two boat, 50 per cent killed," and so on. Fifty per cent of the first landing party of eight boatloads were accounted for before reaching land. Then, being officially "killed" our gun crew was deprived of ammunition.

But, and this was most enjoyable, having been afraid the gun might jam at an awkward moment, we had brought strings of giant Chinese firecrackers and these we loosed off as succeeding waves of attackers made for a landing. We fired them off from a crevice in the rocks which muffled the sound, disguised the position, and baffled the umpires who, had they located the "shots" would have done something worse than "kill" us.

I was most interested to receive a copy of the Don Blanding number of The Pine Cone, and send this to you as from one who met Don in Honolulu and who also has seen and been charmed by Carmel.

Many Enrolling In C. M. T. C.

Enrollments for Citizens' Military Training Camp (CMTC) at the Presidio of Monterey, California, July 1 to 30, 1937, are rapidly filling the quota set by the War Department. About 1145 men will attend camp.

One month's training will be offered in the infantry, cavalry and field artillery branches to young men from 17 to 29 years of age.

Transportation to the place of training is furnished by the government, the favorite method being the reimbursement of the trainee upon his arrival at camp. About July 1 every mode of transportation available will be pressed into service by CMTC candidates en route to camp. Motorcycles, cars, busses, trains and boats will feel the effects of the great trek to CMT camps.

The CMTC is a great character builder for young men as well as an excellent vacation without expense.

Interested young men who are qualified for Uncle Sam's fine offer may still apply for attendance at CMTC. Contact your county representative for CMTC or the enrollment officer, Presidio of Monterey, California, without delay.

Treasure Island, San Francisco Bay site of the 1939 Golden Gate International Exposition, is the largest man-made island in the world.

By RONALD JOHNSON

LADIES and gentlemen, the time has come for you to pat yourselves on your respective backs, jump high in the air, click your heels three times before you touch the ground, and turn your faces to the sky, baying like wolves. Why? you may ask. Because it makes you look silly, say we. Now wait a minute. Before we go any further, let's get this thing straightened out properly. We didn't mean that you lovely people look silly, or, at least, we didn't mean to say so. We get sidetracked so easily, you see. Let's start all over again. There is some chance, no matter how small, that it may make things a little clearer and it does help fill space. Here we go.

Dear readers (the plural ending is just a sop to our vanity, so don't bother to stop and argue), today is a day of joy and cheer, once again the dear little birds are singing their dear little throats out in their own dear little manner, and everything points to the fact that the world is definitely right. Why? you may ask again. Because it makes you look sil—no, now stop it right now. There's a limit to human endurance even in Carmel, and beyond that limit you must never go, my boy. Now be nice and tell the happy people (they will be in a minute, anyway) what it's all about. Well, folks (shuffling of feet and sheepish grin), you see it's this way. You all are reading, we hope, the last of these little printed brainstorms of ours. (Cheers offstage and general public celebration. Street dance in the square at 7). Yep, that's right. This is absolutely the last of these things you ever will see. No longer will you be able to wonder just what form of insanity casts a blight upon our life. (We have all forms, by the way). No more will you be able to wish you had a gun handy when we pass by. No more will your children run home screaming that they have seen that man again. Make no mistake about it, life will once more regain its savor. From now on, your lives will move along smoothly and peacefully, just as you hoped they would when you came to Carmel. Next Friday you can open this, your favorite newspaper, secure in the knowledge that there will be no jarring notes to startle you out of the humdrum state of mind one reaches after having lived here for long.

But to get back to the subject (we had one some time ago, if you'll remember), we're leaving Carmel for good—both ours and its. And, by gosh, for the first time, we did not get fired. While Carmel is a swell town, we've decided to roll because we're beginning to gather moss. (It must be the hard water around here). So, we're going searching for greener fields. We have heard that such things no longer exist but we're determined to verify that rumor for ourself. (Of course, we dont' think for a minute that this is of any interest to you but we do so love to carry on). Where these greener fields may be we have no idea, so we'll probably just drive until the left rear tire goes flat and then stop and look around. Judging from the condition of the left rear tire, we'll probably be about a quarter of a mile from Ocean avenue when we stop and look around, but that doesn't matter a bit.

Seriously, though, we would like to take this opportunity to say that we have enjoyed our stay here immensely, and we sincerely hope we haven't been too much of a strain on your minds. Carmel is everything good that anyone has ever said about it, and wherever we go we'll do our best to send visitors here—but rest assured that they will be the right sort who will treat Carmel with the proper respect. We promise not to send any of the people we meet if the state catches up with us and puts us away in the booby hatch (nut house) because we see no use in flooding the market with cheap imports. The town has been good to us and we hope that we haven't been too bad to the town because we know we'll come back some day, even if only for a few days.

In closing, might we take this opportunity to warn any and all creditors that we will be in town no longer than a week after The Pine Cone makes its appearance today. If we owe you anything, come around and see us—if you feel that you must. We want some kind of a committee to bid us farewell and it might as well be you. Wave the bills madly at us as we leave and we'll guarantee to wave madly back to you. How's that for a bargain?

And we're off in a cloud of dust.

Mrs. Laura Bride Powers to Retire As Custodian Of Old Custom House

Visitors, curiosity seekers, delvers into history of old California, will continue to drift through Old Custom House in Monterey in years to come. Memories of other flags and foreign tongues will haunt its ancient walls. But no longer will ghosts of Spanish warriors listen to hear their exploits told and retold by one who knows so personally the secrets of their by-gone days, for this is the last month of service for Mrs. Laura Bride Powers, supervising custodian of the old building.

Mrs. Powers will leave a job well done, a job into which she has put all of her energy for the last eight years. Now, just passing her seventieth birthday, she is leaving the service of the state to finish her book on California history.

With a past rich in California lore, Mrs. Powers was well fitted to act as custodian for the Old Custom House, which has been converted into a museum by the state government. In 1885, at the age of 18, she started teaching school in San Benito county. Later she taught in San Francisco. After her marriage she became art critic and society editor on the old San Francisco Morning Call, staying there until the fire of 1906. Ten years later she went to the Oakland Tribune as art and society editor, leaving in 1924 to work on her history of California. The Monterey museum captured her interest in 1929, and she has been there since, unfolding its history for the 33,000 tourists who visit the building each year. Her position in the museum is under the state civil service, so she will retire on a small annuity. Retirement age for state employees is 70 years, according to William Brownrigg, executive officer of the state personnel board.

Mrs. Powers has had enthusiastic support from the people of Monterey in her work at the museum, and in the Monterey First Theater which also is under her supervision. The Custom House dates back to 1814; the theater was built in 1844. The theater was first a sailor's lodging house, then a theater, and later a dance hall and a bar. It has been resurrected by the state government, with Mrs. Powers superintending the work, according to Brownrigg.

Old Cabin Inn Reopens May 20

Reopening one of Carmel's best known dining rooms, Mrs. Edith Larson is now managing the Old Cabin Inn at Camino Real and Ocean avenue. Breakfasts and dinners will be served daily and Sunday.

A professional cook, Mrs. Larsen will personally supervise the kitchen.

Located slightly out of the business district, the Old Cabin Inn has a home-like atmosphere and is well known to Carmel visitors.

Advance reservations have already taken all accommodations for the opening evening, Saturday, May 15.

CHECK THE LUBRICANT

Be sure to check with the manufacturer's specifications before adding or replacing lubricant in cars equipped with hypoid gears, says L. G. Right off the bat let it be understood that this issue of The Pine Cone is under the editorship of a person who has not smelled printer's ink for a generation or so, therefore anything on the editorial page should not be held against this paper as an institution, but should be referred to the maverick editor. Anyone feeling offended at anything herein is free to challenge the writer to gentlemanly plumbum satisfaction—30-30s at 50 yards or 45s at 20 paces. But don't bother the regular staff of the paper—none of 'em can pick out a squirrel's eye with a rifle, nor do they belong to the Pistol Club where the writer occasionally maltreats a bullseye. Is that clear?

Finance—and Faith

Have you noticed the large crop of articles and books concerning money lately? It has bloomed violently and almost futilely, for most of the bulge-browed boys who ought to know all the answers, usually break down and confess that they don't know just what money is or what governs its ebb and flow so they slide off into a discussion of its "functions". It is an eel-slippery subject, all right, and has been highly controversial, particularly in this country ever since the Civil War was financed, ever since President Grant tangled up with Geenbacks, ever since Bill Bryan made himself the only great orator of late America in a losing fight for Sixteen to One—and ever since the present Supreme Court OK'd the late painful reneg on the gold clause. Of course, all these things have swirled about the Theory of Finance—and that's where they all bog down and find old John W. Citizen sitting right in the same mud, blinking at the snow storm of tax bills overhead. Money is termed "a medium of exchange." Covers a lot of side issues, that definition. Men have, through distrust, connected money with intrinsic value. But such value is now liable to legal change—does your money serve you? If people no longer cared for gold or silver, where would "intrinsic value" be? I pause for rep—wouldn't money come to mean simple faith in each other and in the form of general government we have worked so hard to establish and make work? Isn't the real money of life fai— . . . do I bore you or do you usually snore on Friday?

The International Laugh

Our dear old toppers of the British Isles, still owing us a tidy sum for saving a sizable war, propose through the possibly unwilling mouth of Lord Riverdale that the war debt be paid by selling English bonds in Uncle Shylock's own front yard. Isn't that just too ducky, lads? Where do they all get that "Shylock" stuff, anyway?

Oh, yes, another giggle arrived late last month in the display ad section of the Examiner. Nearly a quarter page spread about a $35,000,000 Argentine Republic Sinking Fund External Conversion Loan 4 per cent Bond issue. The giggle comes in the small italics reading, "This is under no circumstances to be construed as an offering of these bonds for sale, or as an offer to buy, or as a solicitation of an offer to buy any of such bonds"—etc. The nine firms subscribing to the ad just did it for fun, huh? Talk about legal "outs"! Business in this country must be back to 1929 levels (minus strikes, please) when Britain begins fumbling for the American nursing bottle and South America starts reaching for the can of pabulum at the same time.

Sad Sardines

Now the fishing industry at Monterey brings more —no, no, on second thought we won't rob The Herald of it's daily editorial lead.

FINALE

Here ends, and well, the road,
Ends too, the wheel,
Step softly lest you wake
Death sleeping on the hill.

Here lies, and deep, a dream,
Strike a small fire,
Dip a quiet cup,
The victor having done, can slay again,
Let the dream sleep.

Here is, and none to weep,
Bend the boughs lower,
Speed the night,
One slow defeated, with salute to sun
Measured him, stark, six feet upon the ground,
Scattered the broken wheel, and layed him down.

—NAOMI PHELPS.

DARKNESS

You are not dust—
in the unbelievable morning
I shall awake, with the darkness still in my heart, to find you at my side,
smiling.

It is an evil dream
that you are gone.

—CHARLES BALLARD.

HERE'S LOOKING AT YOU

By LOIS COLLINS PALMER

WE heard something kinda cute about last summer's Girl Scout camp, the first one ever held hereabouts, at the Hatton ranch up in Corral de Tierra. It seems that for most of the girls ,10, 11 years old or thereabouts, this was the first time they had ever been away from home. Homesickness began to sweep over the camp in an epidemic. Parents began to surreptitiously smuggle dolls into camp—not that they were forbidden, or anything like that, but when you get to be 10 or 11 years old, it is not the fashion to appear to be too much concerned about dolls and such childish things. Before the end of the camp, practically every child had her doll. It helped to have them to sleep with. "Just something from home, you know," as it was put by our informant, herself one of those who sent home an SOS.

A NUMBER of times, now, we've seen journalistic colyums in these parts degenerate into a mere chronicling of what goes on in the drinking places on Saturday nights. Now, we sometimes go to the drinking places ourselves on Saturday nights, but oddly enough we practically never have any desire to write about it. That is one occasion when we leave behind not only our spectacles, but our reportorial pad and pencil. By Monday morning, thank God, we can remember neither whom we saw, whom we talked to or what we did; just a vague pleasant feeling of having had a good time. It's nice to have one night out of the seven that we can count on not having to do any reporting.

SIGNS persist that the male sex may yet crack up at the impact of feminine headgear, which gets awfuller and awfuller. There was one in New Yorker, about the slightly inebriated gentleman, who amused himself while strolling on the avenue, by murmuring courteously to each woman he passed, "Madame has a funny hat." Then according to Eleanor James in her Pasadena column, there was a girl at the movies with a crazy hat. She turned, thoughtfully, to see if she was obstructing the view of the man behind her. "Do you mind my hat?" she asked considerately? "No", he replied graciously, "I have seen others that are funnier." And in Imelman's window not long ago we saw a man's hat with three fetching little quills.

A SENDING of slugs . . . or sluggards; three black cats, asleep in a row, nose to tail, on the back of the sofa, their fur fluffed out around them like bouffant taffeta skirts. And oddly enough, suggestive of those African—or was it Mexican—damsels of Henrietta Shore's wending their way across the horizon carrying burdens. Not that cats ever carry burdens of any kind, even mental ones.

We Seek Signs, Andy

Couldn't the County Commissioners take action and extend pity and succor and help and sweetness and light to Carmel by squeezing out a couple more road signs for our sequestered but very travel-worn village? One is badly needed, especially at night, at the junction of Ocean Avenue and the County Road—a route growing in popularity and consequent danger. Of course, there is a self-illuminating sign on the County Road at Carmel Woods, but it leads into a marvelous maze of mystic meanderings out of which one can hardly twist when the sun is vulcanizing the jelly sandwiches of the PWA shrub shooters at that spot. The sign would be much more useful at the Ocean Avenue corner. Another place where danger lurks and waits to shake hands with death is the northern part of the V where the Valley road joins the County Road. Coming from the south no driver can see that a master mind in engineering has provided a completely concealed high speed side road at that point. It's a natural for crashes—and not a warning sign, mind ye! If any of the county bright boys get spilled there, just remember there's a hospital a couple o' staggers up the road.

Carmel's Screaming Needs

(1) A new sewage disposal system. Time for Sanitary District officials to come out of coma and help the worried local Board.

(2) More carefully guarded water supply. Town is growing rapidly and better water will help it, anyway some newcomer may wish to drink it.

(3) New Building Code. Some Committee working on it needs a large shot of adrenalin. Ocean Avenue is just coming out of the old bang era—only one false front left—but the new buildings will need more supervising than present undigested and fermenting ordinances can provide. Might add on to this but must realize that Carmel is just "different". Swellest li'l' town on the coast.

Pay Dirt

A year or so ago the writer let out a squawk right in public about the folly of the city allowing its streets to wash out to sea every rainy season and then going to the expense of hauling in more dirt to fill up the erosion gullies. The same old method still obtains and we all pay for the dirt that each year is used as filler. It is about time the taxpayers demand some more economical method of street repair, if the taxpayers care a hoot as to who pays and pays and pays and gets nothing but ruts in the end.

Oh, Mr. President! Help!

Where th' L has vaunted American virility gone? It seems that nowadays every stuffed shirt Mayor, every Big Corporation Bright Boy, every goggle-eyed, vote-guzzling Governor yells for Presidential help whenever slammed up against a situation needing any kind of thought or action. No wonder Bureaus keep multiplying and Budgets dodge the balance. And no wonder presidents have to go fishing.

"... Who's Gwine t' Bet on th' Bay?"

It is still an open question whether Italy, Germany, Russia, France or England will win the Spanish civil war. Several nations would like to win it and have a juicy frog between a nice, large pair of political pincers. Be rawther surprising to see England and the U. S. A. (through operation of the Pittman Neutrality Act) win on the last throw of the dice, wot?

"Should U. S. Ever Again Go to War on Foreign Soil" Topic of Peace Meet

"Should the United States Ever Again Go to War on Foreign Soil?" This will be the topic for discussion at a public mass meeting for all of Monterey Peninsula to be conducted under the auspices of the Emergency Peace Campaign, at the Presbyterian Church in Monterey, Friday evening, May 21 at 8 o'clock. Two speakers, both very prominent in social and church work in the East Bay cities, will present this topic from different points of view. Dr. George P. Hedley, director of the Western Summer School for Workers, sponsored by the California Association for Adult Education, and Dr. William Paul Raegor, pastor of First Christian church in Oakland, will be the speakers.

The speakers are brought to the Monterey peninsula for the purposes of education as to the basic causes and results of war, and as to the furtherance of the spirit of peace. They are being backed by a large committee of sponsors from the three communities of Monterey peninsula who are interested in constructive peace efforts. It is hoped that hundreds of citizens will take advantage of this rare opportunity to hear two such outstanding California men.

Opportunity will be given for interested individuals to ask questions from the floor and the speakers will be ready to answer them freely. There will be a free-will offering taken to defray the expenses in bringing the men to the peninsula.

The Emergency Peace Campaign is led nationally by Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick in cooperation with Admral Richard E. Byrd, honorary chairman, and hundreds of nationally known advocates of peace. A local committee of sponsors is led by Rev. Homer S. Bodley, pastor of the Community church in Carmel and an executive committee consisting of Mrs. Vera Peck Millis of Carmel, Mrs. A. B. Ingham of Pacific Grove, Miss Margaret Draper and Florence Parsons, and Wayne Edwards. These were chosen from a large group of sponsors, a complete list of whom will be announced at a later date.

A cordial invitation is given to the public to attend the meeting at the Presbyterian church and other meeting to be arranged.

New Normandy Apartments Open

For the last several months, Carmel residents have watched with great interest the development of the new apartment building which has been under construction at Ocean avenue and Monte Verde. The building, known as the Normandy Apartments, is now finished and ready for occupancy.

The building was designed by Robert Stanton, A. I. A., and the decorating was done by Virginia Stanton. Both have done creditable jobs, and the building is both modern and beautiful, inside and out.

There are 10 single apartments, each with a living room, bed alcove, kitchenette, spacious closet space and a dressing cabinet. To make the apartments even more homelike and comfortable, each one has a fireplace constructed of the old type of French colored tile. On the walls of all apartments are many old and lovely French prints. The color scheme of each apartment is different, and each one has all fixtures, fireplace tiles and china designed to conform and harmonize with its particular colors. Everything in the building was made to order and the result is a structure that is completely custom-built from top to bottom.

NOTED MAESTRO TO GIVE MASTER CLASSES IN S. F.

Of interest to Carmel singing students and instructors is the news that Frantz Proschowski, one of the world's foremost authorties on the training of the human voice, will hold his famous master classes in San Francisco and the East Bay Cities for the entire month of June. Robert Everhart, Berkeley voice teacher who has been instrumental in bringing Proschowski to the coast,

BIG CROWD VISITS HOSPITAL

Over 125 persons visited Peninsula Community hospital Wednesday, National Hospital Day, and had a fine time inspecting the hospital from top to bottom. Every bit of the hospital was open for inspection and the visiting public went away satisfied that Carmel has one of the best hospitals in the country. Tea was served from 2 to 4, and a good time was had by all.

School Carnival Friday Afternoon

pony ride, and it will be there, with ponies both saddled and pulling carts.

The final big act of the day will be the Hotel Del Monte orchestra, under the leadership of its maestro, Freddie Nagel. The orcehstra will play for dancing in the auditorium. Those who wish to sit and listen and watch may do so, and those who dance will use the stage. The orchestra will play from 4 to 6, and should prove one of the most popular parts of the afternoon.

All in all, the Sunset school carnival has everything to make it a huge success. The attractions have been planned to suit everyone, and everyone is sure to like all the attractions.

RED CROSS SWIM CLASSES

The American Red Cross senior life saving class began Monday at the Pacific Grove municipal pool, with free instruction being given to all. Everyone is invited to attend the classes, which will be held in the mornings. Admission to the pool is 30 cents, but all life saving training will be given free.

Alonzo H. Hale Dies At Home On Lincoln

Alonzo H. Hale, a Carmel resident for many years, died last Friday at his home on Lincoln street after a short illness.

Mr. Hale was born in Middle Village, Long Island, New York, and was 50 years of age. He had lived in California for 20 years, the last 15 in Carmel. His wife, Martha Hale, survives him. The body was taken to Santa Cruz, the Paul Mortuary being in charge of arrangements.

The lessons of the past have to be learned anew each decade.

Dont' talk about what you're going to do—do it!

ALL SAINTS CHURCH SPONORS GARDEN PARTY WEDNESDAY

The vestry of All Saints Church is sponsoring an informal garden reception to be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James L. Cockburn, Tenth and Carmelo, the afternoon of Wednesday, May 19, from 3:30 p. m. to 5:30 p. m., to meet the Reverend Carel J. Hulsewe and Mrs. Hulsewe.

It is the sincere hope of the vestry that their fellow citizens, regardless of church affiliations, will avail themselves of this opportunity to welcome the Reverend and Mrs. Hulsewe to our community.

MISSION RANCH CLUB ACTIVITIES

Last Saturday night's dance at the Mission Ranch Club was adjudged a great success by both the staff of the club and the many members and guests who attended. The dance was such a success, in fact, that it is hoped to make these Saturday night parties a regular weekly event throughout the summer.

Mrs. Edward Seely-Smith was hostess to a group of her friends last Friday at a luncheon given at the Mission Ranch Club. Her guests were Mrs. Colden Whitman, Mrs. Margaret Moll, Mrs. DeWitt Blamer, Mrs. Walter Snook and Muriel Marsh .

Badminton is becoming quite the rage at the club now, and the new badminton building is the center of many club activities. Many members are old hands at the game, and the beginners are coming along fast. A badminton tournament is being planned for some date in the near future.

Mrs. Ray Brownell was hostess to a small group of friends at luncheon at the club last Thursday.

With all activity going on at the club, the front porch of the clubhouse still seems to be the most popular place of all. From morning until evening, most of the easy chairs on the porch are occupied by tired club members, most of whom are either preparing for a game of tennis or resting after the last one.

After having spent many months in the east, living most of the time in New York City, Mrs. Fern Hyde and Miss Bettie Hyde have made plans to return to their Carmel home some time early in June. Except for Bettie, who spent several weeks here not long ago, the entire Hyde family has been away from Carmel for a long time, and their return will probably bring the family together for the summer.

Dear friends:

The method we use in computing the cost of a funeral is simple in its operation.

Each item of merchandise or service required is listed. There is a definite established price for each item. The prices on our merchandise are marked in plain figures, so that all may see. There are no deviations.

The total cost is thus computed, and depends entirely upon your selection and your service requirements.

Respectfully,

Community Church Holds Conference

The annual church conference of the Community church was held last Monday evening around a "Pot-luck" table. Miss Clara Hinds presided, in the absence of O. W. Badarson, president, and called for committee reports. All reports indicated a healthy growth of the church in its different departments and organizations. Rev. Bodley's report reviewed something of the year's work and looked into the future with confidence.

The election of officers took place and the following were elected: president, Victor Graham; vice-president, Henry Baurenschmidt; secretary, Edna Lockwood; treasurer, Esther Smith. The trustees elected were Courtland Arne, Miles Bain, Josephine Culbertson, Esther Smith and Victor Graham.

Victor Graham was also elected as delegate to the Northern California annual conference to be held in June. Miss Agnes Williston was elected as alternate.

Dr. John L. Burcham, district superintendent of the Methodist church, spoke briefly and asked a few questions for his records. Dr. Burcham will stay in the manse and conduct services during the absence of the Bodleys on a two weeks vacation in June.

AVOIDING THE "RING"

Many motorists, when they clean the car's upholstery, make a grease stain worse in trying to remove it, says L. G. Evans, general service manager of the N. A. C. Remember to start outside the spot and rub toward it, thus reducing materially the possibility of leaving a "cleaning ring."

M. U. H. S. Senior Week to be Held End of May

Senior Week, for the Monterey High School seniors, will be held the last week of May and ought to be a gay and amusing week for everyone. Senior girls and only senior girls, can wear red and white bows, during this week. Only senior boys will be allowed to wear ties.

On Tuesday after school a swimming party will be held at the high school pool and only seniors may attend.

Thursday will be the day of days—only a half-day of school for those seniors who want to go on a picnic. They will leave from the high school at the beginning of fifth period, chaperoned by Miss E. Mitchell and Coach R. Hughes, gym teachers at Monterey High. The event will take place in Carmel Valley, with swimming the most important pastime.

Dairy Truck Stolen Mon. Night Found

Police business took a turn for the better this week after dropping down during the last. The average for this time of year is three arrests per week, and everyone was disappointed to see it go to two.

Spencer Newton Parmlee and Tom Swope were picked up for less serious traffic violations, but the high spot of the week was the arrest of Mrs. Knapp Smith, a visitor here from Hawaii, who was arrested Thursday night after she had driven her car into that of Milton Latham, doing damage to both cars. She was found to be intoxicated, and appeared before Judge George P. Ross Friday morning, pleading guilty to a charge of operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of alcohol. Judge Ross sentenced her to a $100 fine and a 30-day sentence in the county jail, suspended on condition that she leave Carmel, but not before she had paid for the damage done to the Latham car. She paid and left.

The milk truck belonging to the McDonald Dairy was stolen late Monday night from its parking place next to the dairy. When the theft was reported, police advanced the theory that some inebriated visitor had become stranded here and had taken the truck for a ride home. Such was the case, and the truck was found the next day in Pacific Grove, unharmed.

Chief of Police Robert Norton took the theft of the truck as another indication of the fact that it is no longer safe for car owners to leave their automobiles about the streets as they have in days gone by. More than ever before, Carmel cars have been stolen during the last year, and while most of them have been found later in some town a few miles away, a few have not been recovered, notably one that was pushed over a cliff nto the ocean a number of miles down the coast.

MADAME PIRENNE GIVES LECTURES AT M. U. H. S.

Madame Jeanne Pirenne of Carmel has given a series of four lectures to the French students of Monterey High School, on European history. The lectures were entirely in French, two of which were accompanied by picturesque slides which made the lectures more interesting.
